

We Al-li's Facilitator Training

Recreating Songlines from Trauma Trails:

The ceremony of Indigenous Facilitation Practice

A Five Day Training Program developing facilitation skills for professional practice

Culturally Informed Trauma
Integrated Healing to Community and Organisations

This five-day residential intensive workshop has been designed for people who are wanting to deepen their personal and professional development:

- ✓ In Indigenous Facilitation Practice in the trauma healing space;
- ✓ That are wanting to continue to learn, through being actively involved in We Al-li's mentorship model, including access to the facilitation progression system unique to We Al-li.
- ✓ Incorporating self-care and development of a Community of Care within the group.

This 5-day intensive will enhance the many skills YOU bring with you and introduce you to the We Al-li way of working. Our workshops are experiential, focusing on process work as an embodied learning approach, that are deep and at times confronting but optional sessions that can challenge both the Facilitator and the participants.

Aims of this Workshop

To create a safe circle to enable participants to immerse themselves in Indigenous Facilitation Practices from an experiential perspective, drop into truth telling (past, present and future) and find and tell their stories, make sense of their stories, feel the feelings, move through the layers of loss, grief and trauma to ownership of choices, leading to strengthening cultural and spiritual identities – both individually and collectively.

Objectives of this Workshop

To establish a safe circle through observing protocol and ceremony to facilitate the mapping of trauma and the process of healing – recreating our song lines and healing trails from a Facilitators' / Participants' perspective. This will be facilitated through experiential processes using art, symbols, music, theatre, emotional release, body work, storytelling and mapping and reflective discussion embodied in deep listening –equipping facilitators with the skills to work in this space.

WORKSHOP FACILITATORS

Carlie Atkinson

Carlie (Caroline) Atkinson is a Bundjalung and Yiman woman and an accredited Social Worker with a PhD (Charles Darwin University, 2009). Associate Professor Atkinson is an international leader in complex and intergenerational trauma and strengths-based healing approaches in Indigenous Australia. She has focused her career on the interplay between trauma and violence in Aboriginal peoples in Australia, has developed extensive community and practice-based experience through her collaborative co-designed resource development work, and developed Australia's first adapted, culturally sensitive, reliable and valid Aboriginal trauma assessment measure. She is the CEO of her family organisation, We Al-li, designing and coordinating delivery of Culturally Informed Trauma Integrated Healing Approaches (CITIHA) training and resource development for organisations and communities across Australia focusing on systems transformation and implementation.

Ash Dargan

Ash gained his Masters of Indigenous Studies under Dr. Judy Atkinson following her work in Trauma Informed approaches to community recovery as the Australian Federal Government moved to set up and fund the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Healing Foundation. Since that time he has held State and Territory senior leadership positions across the Education, Mental Health, Justice and Community Service sectors. Ash is passionate about leading change processes that enable better and fairer outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. As a critically reflective thinker he bridges the cultural divide allowing ideas to flow into actions that make sense for services and consumers. He was one of the founding members of the Larrakia Healing Group that produced one of Australia's leading resources on 'place based' Transgenerational Trauma and how to heal from its compounding effects within a historical framework.

Tyson Carmody

Tyson Carmody is a trusted narrative therapist, community leader, proud Arrernte man, father, and the founder and managing director of Kings Narrative. His vision at Kings Narrative is to support Aboriginal men to be the authors of their own story and build a proud future for his sons to inherit. Anyone who has worked with Tyson knows the patience, generosity, and knowledge he brings to everything he does. His work now is firmly grounded in systems change, strong communities and nurturing black excellence. He is highly sought after as a speaker, facilitator, and mediator. Tyson has held many lead positions throughout Mparntwe (Alice Springs) across youth and community development including roles as Coordinator - Reconnect Program at The Gap Youth and Community Centre, Head of Wellbeing - St Joseph's Catholic Flexible Learning Centre, Director - Centralian Senior College Clontarf Academy, and Head of Health and Wellbeing - Children's Ground Central Australia.

Jem Stone

Jem Stone is a First Nations Woman, Educator and Wellness Practitioner who is passionately integrating original knowledge into education and wellness spaces through connection and decolonised learning methods. Jem acknowledges all her ancestral roots that include Indigenous Australian from the Bundjalung Nation, First Nations American, Afro Caribbean, English and Irish. Working in the wellness industry for over twenty years, Jem Stone arrived in healing spaces through her own personal healing journey and continues to walk her healing path and dedicates much of her time learning from Elders and other cultural teachers. Jem is passionate about creating safe, inclusive, decolonised spaces for healing.

Beth Wrigley

Beth is a proud mother and grandmother dedicated to intergenerational healing. Beth is a Registered Nurse and has worked in the Health and Human Services sector for many years including the fields of: diversional therapy, service co-ordination and provision for People with Disabilities, Community Aged Care, Out of Home Care & mentoring adolescents with complex needs. Beth holds a Masters of Indigenous Studies (Trauma & Healing) and has taught for Gnibi College of Indigenous Australian Peoples at Southern Cross University (SCU) in the Masters Program. Her own healing & ongoing learning with We Al-li has enabled Beth to bring circle work, cultural safety principles & trauma informed care knowledge & practice to her teaching in the Nursing & Midwifery Faculty at SCU for many years. Beth is engaged in community development work. Proud of her heritage with the Dharug people of the Sydney area and also her Scottish heritage, Beth lives with her family on Gumbaynggirr Country.

ABOUT THE VENUE

Apmwerre (Black tank outstation) 80km Northeast of Alice Springs

the homeland of which Kings Narrative operates, Tyson Carmody is a Traditional Owner of Apmwerre and his cultural and spiritual connections to his land run deep.

Healing on country.

Healing at its deepest level, happens on country.

We cannot begin to see and understand our problems as Aboriginal people until we decolonise the playing field to give life to our experiences that stand up against the dominant discourse. For us as Aboriginal people Country and Culture is where we find our way, navigating through problem stories to begin re-authoring them and bring into view our preferred stories. Being on Country provides us the safe, strong, and cultural feeling needed to prepare us, to be ready to unpack and see our problem stories and how they operate in our life's. On Country we can give meaning to these stories and so in turn we can understand them. When we can see it and understand it, then we are able to do something about it. That is why we do what we do out on Country. In town everything can seem like it's falling apart, out on country it seems like everything is falling into place.
